TAUNTON WOMAN'S BODY FOUND NEAR LAKE; INQUIRY IS BEGUN

Taunton, Oct. 31.—An investigation is under way today into the death of Mrs. Louie Perkins Toner, whose body was found on the shore of Lake Assawampsett in Lakeville with a bullet wound in the right temple.
Mrs. Toner was the widow of William Toner, proprietor of an automobile lot in Lakeville known as "The Bitches." The spot where Mrs. Toner's body was found was about 150 yards from the lot. The body was discovered by the dead woman's nephew, Edward Sanno, who has been helping to run the lot since the death of his uncle.
Sanno said his aunt had been acting strangely of late and was apparently grief-stricken over the death of her husband. Toner died a few weeks ago and Sanno says Mrs. Toner said she did not care to live without him.

PAS FOR LURE NEW ENGLAND GIRLS TOOK CASH FROM BOTH WIFE

A pretty twenty-one-year-old Providence girl, worth between $20,000 and $30,000 in her own name, was the ninth wife of the Rev. Arthur Worthington, it became known today in the investigation now being made of the exploits of the clergyman who figured in a dozen or more marriages and elopements and perpetrated countless swindles and forgeries.

The bride of the clergyman-crook was Emma Marie Perry, daughter of George and Rebecca Perry, and she was married at her home at No. 218 Polite street, Providence, R. I., by the Rev. Daniel Henshaw, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, one of the most exclusive churches of Providence.

The Rev. Dr. Worthington was listed thirty-eight, and he was inaccurately claimed as a newspaper correspondent, claiming to be writing important articles for the leading newspapers in that city, and as a former editor in the Union Army in the Civil War. The startling revelation was also made today that this girl married the pastor against the advice of her older sister, Miss Emily Perry, who a year before had herself become the bride of a dashing young Englishman but did not leave until later that he had a wife who was still living.

The typical instance of the audacity of the pastor to conquer the hearts of the fair sex and the unprincipled fashion in which he deserted them after he had obtained all their money is disclosed in the remarkable story of the marriage of Miss Perry, her brief marriage in the social circles of a West New State as his wife and her desertion when pregnant.

At the time of her desertion, she was about to have a mother, if not a child, and she left the first wife of the clergyman had one child, but she had later and the last four children, with whom she is still living in Providence.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Tackle Tierney Back With B.C.

Varsity Tackle Tierney of the Boston College eleven was out in his logs for the first time since the New Hampshire State game two weeks ago. He is the strong man of Brickley's line, and his return for the Rhode Island game Saturday was heralded with joy by the "rooters."

Before practice Coach Brickley held a conference in the locker room. Last Saturday's game with Trinity was discussed in full.

"Katie" Collins, who was laid up all last week with a strained knee, is back in fighting trim and will be in the lineup against Rhode Island.

KEEFE IS FIND AT TUFTS

Medford Warriors, Back from Indiana Battle, Praise Freshman for Splendid Performance.

Tufts' victorious football team is back from its trip to Indianapolis, where it defeated Indiana University last Saturday, with all its players except Mitchell in good condition.

Mitchell was injured early in the first quarter of the battle with the Hoosiers and will be out of the game for at least a week. He received a bad cut over the eye, while his shoulder was thrown slightly out of place.

The work of Keefe, the freshman "find" who took Mitchell's place after the latter was injured, was the most gratifying thing about the whole struggle. His line-backer play, and his running was every bit as good as that of Captain Weir, and, on the defensive, he held tight. Besides, much of the ground gained by the Brown and Blue was run off by this speedy substitute.

Brown, left tackle, played his usual dependable game. Very little credit has been given this plucky little liner since this fall, for his work is so consistently good it is taken as a matter of course.

Yet the fact remains that in the two years he has played on the varsity Brown has started every game and has never yet been taken out. There are few men in college football who can boast of such a record.

According to the consensus of opinion, Tufts deserved to win from Indiana by a wider margin than the 12-10 score shown.

Today Tufts starts work for Saturday's tussle with the Massachusetts Amherst. This is always one of the toughest games on the schedule, and Whelan feels that his men need a lot of drilling before he can be confident they will take the "farmers" into camp.

Surprises on Gridiron Camp Compares Teams

By WALTER CAMP.
(Written expressly for the Boston American).

There has already been a season of surprises, but there will be more unexpected happenings in November. It is not quite a case of the first half and the last half, but one or two of the teams which, in mid-October looked to be exceptionally weak will gather strength in their development and will give trouble to those who look for an easy time.

Early season scores in football as a rule show only what teams have in the way of material. One team may be brought along rapidly or have a comparatively new style of play, and until their opponents have perfected a game, such a play will gain. Later on it may be another question altogether.

Really successful season teams have always been those who have perfected a simple basic line for the building on of plays and have then added the superstructure in the latter part of November.

When Yale introduced the lateral pass in 1914 for the first four games they were invincible, even defeating by a large score the very formidable Notre Dame team, 25 to 0.

LEGIONS STARRED WITH PLAY. There was a great factor in that play for there is no man with whom football is more friendly. But, later in the year when this lateral pass and Lettner's work had rolled up 13 points on Princeton, the latter team began to realize that there was little attack through the middle of the line and that at the end Yale was battling to hold the victory that had looked in the first half only too easy.

Harvard, taking advantage of this, simply moved Yale under, 26 to 0 a week later. Tufts' attack this year, which had been so formidable against Harvard, came to naught against the more active, aggressive defense of Princeton, and had the Tigers possessed a more powerful attack themselves and done less fumbling, their victory would have been larger than a single field goal.

But, as already stated, the first shadow of a season's play has little bearing upon the perfected final results, and I look to see Harvard, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania all demonstrating this in their November contests.

LAFAYETTE IS DANGEROUS. Lafayette, too, may be able to come back, for her final game in 1915 was a strong reversal of all expectations and surprised largely greatly.

The Army in very strong this year, and had it not been for the Navy's fine work against Pittsburgh things would indeed look blue at Annapolis. The Navy will have to take much better care of itself than they did last year.

It is this sticky gridiron work, where the attacking and the defending are so close, and where one can hold his own by sticking mud to his head and shoulders.

Harvard's game of the advanced and strong supporters of the so-called "open football" have made a mistake in basing their equipment on largely on the fact that it gives the enemy a real chance against a bigger "set."

The first result of any novelty is along these lines. But by the time the possibilities of the new style of play are fully recognized and the mind digested, in football as in the majority of sports where the mind is so essential, the old trum that a "good team will beat a good little one" is found coming to its own once more.

VARIED ATTACK IS SUCCESS. Today it was found that a team that builds a varied attack around a powerful rush line and strong backs can so assault the defense of their opponents as to make it necessary to support the line and then the poor fellows who are being out played in the slugging attack are obliged to weaken their defense to the task game which the big fellows then take advantage of. This one unbalanced attack is being run up upon the former team.

The situation was formerly that the larger teams did not make much use of the forward pass. They occasionally slipped it in, but it was not really part of their stock in trade, whereas it was a very great feature of the little teams.

What a team does not play itself it never becomes particularly expert in defending against, hence the enormous impression that the smaller teams had a fair and even chance against the big ones under the revised rules of football that they used to have in the older times.

BIG TEAMS USE PASSAGE. Now that the big teams have taken up the forward pass and are making it part of their regular attack, the whole condition is altered and the chances are that they will go on riddling up big scores against the little teams. In other words it comes back to the good big man leading the good little man, which has been the good, for the big fellow has now learned defense to the forward pass.

When a Princeton man breaks a Penn man he breaks of old scores so it must have been an especially sweet day for Homer, the old Princeton coach, now handling Northwester, where his men "put it over" on Penn, coached by Bob Feltner.

Rob Simpson is having things all his own way over in Stockholm toppling the Indians, but Ted Brown still finds himself up against it. No one can run inside all Winter break, records all Spring and then keep it up all the fall.

Watch that Penn line a month from now. "Rock" Wharton made it for the Cornell game last year and he'll do it again.

When Hanchett needs him, Crawford Hanchett, one of the best tackle coaches in the country, can always be had. In the early days of Hanchett's coaching, Crawford Hanchett and Leo Leary were his right hand men. Both are now at work. Watch the development on the wings—especially the one by Wood.

SYRACUSE-MICH. BREAK. Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Syracuse athletic officials admit the football relations with Michigan will probably be severed. Michigan used officials last Saturday who had been protested by Syracuse.

Jacques Hurt and Braden at Full

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 21.—Jim Braden appeared at fullback on the Yale varsity and has been selected to start Saturday's game against Colgate, replacing Jim Jacques, who has gone to Yale Academy with a slight attack of water on the knee.

Herbert Kempton, freshman captain, also went to the infirmary with a strained ankle. Quarterback, Smith, dislocated his finger in the practice but expects to return to the field before Saturday. The work included only signal practice.

BROWN SQUAD AT IT FOR THE YALE GAME

Providence, Oct. 21.—Only eleven men reported for Brown's football practice and six of these did not get into their tops. The work was light, consisting chiefly of booting the ball about the field in a limbering up way.

Today the preliminary work started for the Yale game. Next Saturday Vermont plays here, but it is not expected in football more than a practice game for the Brownites.

The minutes of last week's year in and, and Captain Harlan (shown are pronounced slight by Manager Norman Rutledge, George Carter and Ray Robinson are expected to play with the remainder of the squad.

With one exception, or two at the most, Hanchett is apt to start, but the minutes are open for him against Cornell Saturday.

ROBINSON HAS CALL. Robinson and Murray are apparently in excellent shape for the game, with the former still at least one foot in the lead—his drop kicking line.

Edward Carter, he of the enthusiastic back, is back, ready to start.

Harve and Charles Knodger have a struggle hold on the coals of the line, while Walter Wherry's all-around play at tackle against Cornell practically secures him of his place, unless he falls in the Princeton game.

Carter is not yet half better, and this means Knodger may start in the other place this fall. He seems to have shaken the form which plagued him last year among the one, and he will be down at the other end, but the latter will have to travel at a terrific pace, and keep of the injured line, if he is to break back with the regulars again.

Harve, still confident at center, though Knodger will back this week to give him a hand for the game.

Ralph Horween on Disabled Squad

The members of the Harvard varsity football squad, who took part in the Cornell game last Saturday, return to their gridiron labors this afternoon after two days of rest.

The usual family blackboard parley is programmed for a start. The Cornell lecture will be of the greatest importance, since the mistakes of the Cornell game will be dwelt upon and the players frankly told wherein they erred, while some of the men will undoubtedly come in for a good word from Head Coach Laughlin.

High Horween, who shared the thought in Saturday's game with Eddie Chase, is a recent addition to the hospital brigade. Horween, who is still in the hospital, is the left wrist when tackled by Captain Knodger. An X-ray examination of the injury diagnoses it as slight, but Horween is out of Saturday's game with Virginia.

GAINS OFFSET LOSSES ON CHANGE

Prices in the New York stock market were mixed at noon after spells of alternate strength and weakness. Gains, however, outweighed losses. Smaller volumes of business indicated that traders were acting cautiously pending political, international and industrial developments. Greater interest was shown in the meeting of the directors of the United States Steel Corporation late today, when the earnings for July, August and September will be announced and dividends declared. Estimates of earnings run from $15,000,000 to $16,000,000, while many traders believe steel will receive an extra dividend of 2 per cent in addition to the quarterly dividend of 1 1/4 per cent.

Confidence in the outcome of the steel meeting was reflected in the stock's gaining 1/16 to 1/8, after having shown a slight loss in early trading.

Creditable steel attracted attention by its exceptional strength, advancing 2 1/2 points to 94. It later forfeited some of its gains. There was talk of pool manipulation in this stock.

At noon prices of a point or more were shown by Central Leather, General Electric, American Sugar and Industrial Alcohol. Motor stocks were weak, as were roads. Copper stocks were fractionally better.

Trading in Boston was quiet, with prices irregular at noon. Swift & Company advanced a point, but other changes were more fractional. Ford Credit Coal touched 18 1/2. A high price for the stock. American Commercial and Superior & Boston were strong and active. Since were also strong.

News of the importation of $1,000,000 more gold from Canada, making total gold imports of $17,000,000 since January 1, was offset by reports that there were probably American fatalities in the strike of the Marica.

Motor Notes.
By J. C. KERRISON.
Howard A. Mathison, president of the Jackson Automobile Company of Jackson, Mich., has been elected chairman of the Motor Notes committee of the New England Automobile Association. He took advantage of the occasion to compliment the men on the great work they have accomplished in this territory, which is now second to none in the field. He predicted great increase in business the coming season and said many pleasant things regarding the men in the Boston out-let.

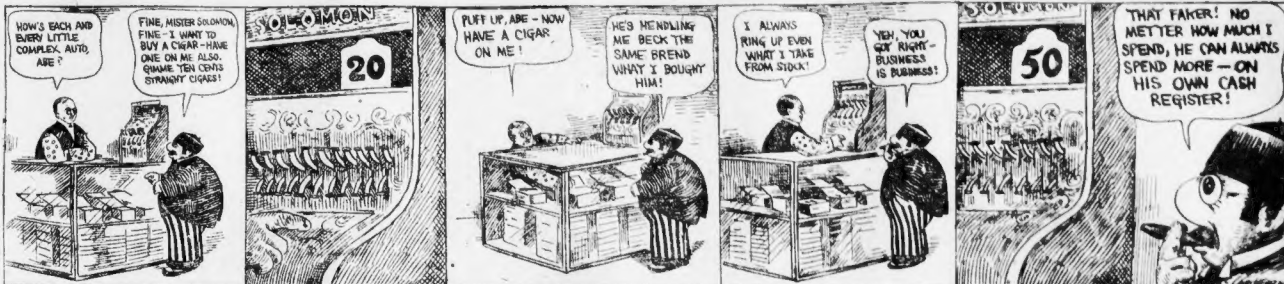

Registrations in New York State passed over the 300,000 mark. The great majority of cars registered are of the five-passenger type. The figure points to an increase of over 45 per cent over the first nine months of last year and gives a total of $1,511,212.50 in receipts.

Financial preparation for much larger production of Chalmers cars during 1917 are in the making. The company has made arrangements whereby it is agreed to about $1,000,000 increased working capital. This sum will be used for the purpose of increased production, including the erection of necessary buildings, purchase of tools and materials and labor.

A Very Interesting Woman Visits Boston

BOSTON is interested in the visit of Mrs. Mary Fels of Philadelphia. Mrs. Fels is interesting to public-spirited citizens of Boston as the widow of Joseph Fels, multi-millionaire soap manufacturer, who devoted his great fortune and declining years to the promotion of the "single tax," a reform which lies immediately in our path of progress and which will set free the creative forces of industry, removing the burden from production and placing it largely where it belongs, upon unearned wealth in the hands of monopolists.

Mrs. Fels is also interesting to us in her own person, because she has loyalty and effectively carried on her husband's great work, being intellectually convinced that he was right. She has traveled over the world to investigate conditions which touch the single tax, and she is devoting her time and money to this great cause.

Compare her life in its splendid service to the butterfly life of the frivolous rich. Who can doubt when Mrs. Fels lays her head wearily on her pillow, after a hard day's work for the good of others, that she is more content than those whose idleness "makes the down pillow hard."

That school of thinkers who hold that the only incentive to work is the acquisition of money has never had an insight into the lives of those who have worked for the public weal. There is no greater fallacy in the whole intellectual world than the notion that we cannot find a substitute for material personal gain as a motive for effort in the world. Those who should know better stoutly maintain this inveterate notion because it lies at the bottom of our unequal distribution of wealth and the inequalities of our social condition.

The unthinking blindly accept it because they have seen no other motive. But some day we shall wake up and interpret correctly the vital fact that the acquisition of money was not done for money, but did not profit particularly by their inventions; that the great artists worked for love of their art and for pride of success; that the great writers wrote because they had to write, because what was in them must come out; that the football player keeps to a limited and tiresome diet, exercises wearily and plays in the face of physical danger and exhaustion, out of enthusiasm for the sport and pride in his athletic achievements. And so does the oarsman and the runner.

So, too, if they only knew it, do the most intellectual of the captains of industry and the lawyers and the doctors. They work for money merely because habit has fixed in the idea of the community the notion that their success is measured by the accumulation of money. Who would insult the great statesmen, the great patriots, the great philosophers, the great astronomers, the great mathematicians, the great historians, the great physicians and the great clergymen with the charge that the acquisition of money was the chief incentive of their labors and of their success? Are the men who are suffering and dying by the hundreds and thousands every month in the trenches of Europe giving up their lives and comfort and health for money?

To paraphrase the poet, "Service hath her victories no less renowned than gain."

Mr. Mansfield Is Loyal to a Vital Reform

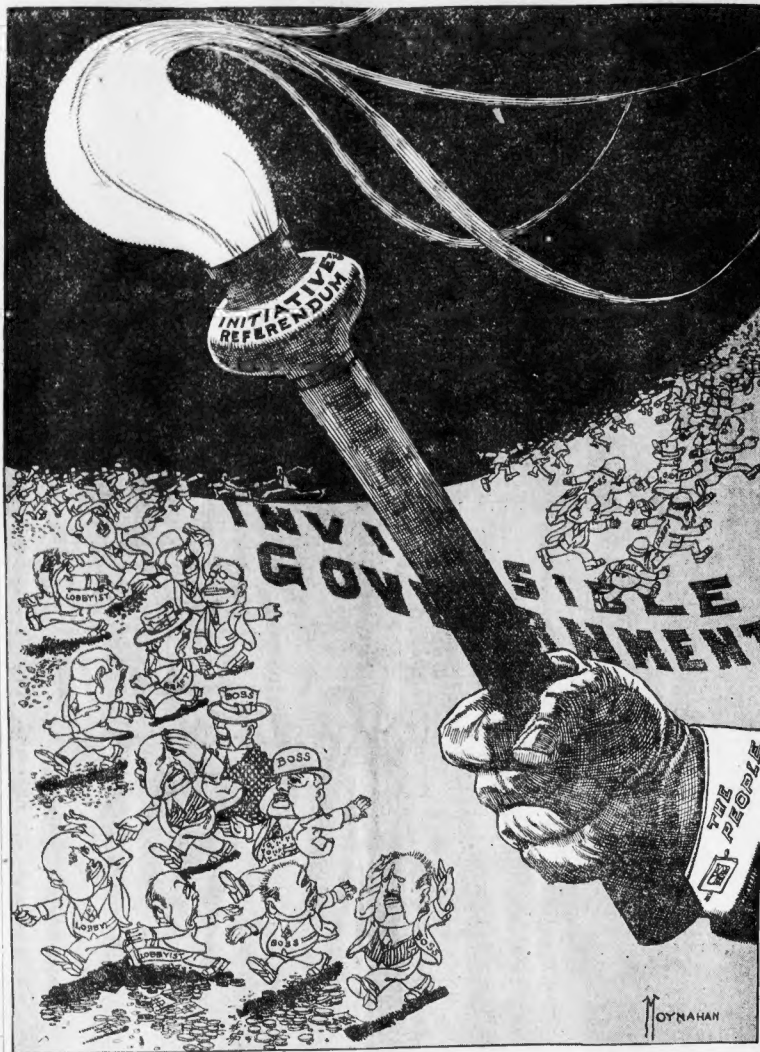

AS the campaign waxed warmer it becomes increasingly evident that Mr. Mansfield, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is loyally supporting the Constitutional Convention and the Initiative and Referendum. Both are Democratic policies. Governor Walsh first recommended the Constitutional Convention, after years of effort had failed to secure any constitutional changes except those wanted by the highly-organized special interests.

Governor McCall took it up, made it part of his program as a candidate for Governor and loyally put it through the Legislature as the most important part of his program. Governor McCall believes the Constitutional Convention will make his administration epochal in the history of Massachusetts, and even of America. He, too, is loyally advocating the Constitutional Convention upon the stump, while the stand-patters in his own party are stabbing the party faith in the back wherever they can, and with it its chief Republican champion, Governor McCall.

The Governor has not yet reached the point of such certainty in his convictions that he feels like publicly advocating the Initiative and Referendum, but he is progressing. Like Theodore Roosevelt, sooner or later, if he is spared his health, he will have such an experience with invisible government and with powerful special interests and its standpoint janitor and hirelings that he, too, will come to see the Initiative and Referendum as the great instruments with which to break the backs of these anti-social interests which have fastened their tentacles upon the present form of government, and have now for several generations denied the control of their government to a majority of the citizens.

In the meantime Mr. Mansfield is doing loyal pioneer work on the Initiative and Referendum in the campaign.

A BRIGHT LIGHT IN A DARK PLACE

THE Referendum enables the people to veto a bad law which an unwise or corrupt Legislature has passed. The Initiative enables the people themselves to enact a good law which a bad or corrupt Legislature controlled by the invisible government has persistently refused to pass.

The Initiative and Referendum saved the Republic of Switzerland. Before the people of Switzerland took control of their government by these two measures it was the most corrupt in Europe. Today only one of the twenty-two States which comprise the Republic of Switzerland is corrupt and has a boss. That one State does not enjoy the Initiative and Referendum.

Twenty-two of our most progressive American States, Republican and Democratic, have adopted the Initiative and Referendum. New Zealand, which has the best government in the world, has adopted it, and the finest provinces of Canada have adopted it.

How to Pick 'Em in Politics

BUT oftener our guess was wrong, and men who took a chance And bet their cash upon our dope would look at us in askance. And sometimes they'd do more than that; they'd storm and rage And swear that they were coming round to take it out of us! And now, when we write politics we pick our words a bit; Our rule in making prophecies is safety first, to wit: WHEN Wilson wins—If Wilson wins, he stays and he may not— It means the Grand Old Party Vote has fallen off a lot. When Hughes gets in—If Hughes gets in—the Democrats will find That it was fatal for their man to run so far behind. And then we slip in at the end, to prove that we are clever, A dozen "on-the-other hands, sure Buts, and a However!"

WE'd size a situation up, discuss the candidates And clearly prove how one of them was favored by the fates. We'd chuck a little heavy talk about the issues in And then we'd cheerfully predict which man was going to win. WE picked the winner now and then, and everybody said: "That fellow certainly has got a mighty level head. And famous folks would write to us next year and ask to get Our views upon the Fall campaign so they could lay a bet. And we would strut and swell our chest and manfully say, Referring to our prophecies, "We guess we're rather—big!"

What the People of Rhode Island Think

Last Monday the AMERICAN Printed an Editorial Headed: "What Do the People of Rhode Island Think?" Here Are Some of the Responses.

THE following, taken at random, are some letters in response to a question that the AMERICAN asked of its Rhode Island readers whether or not the AMERICAN ought to interest itself in the Rhode Island political situation. What all of these citizens of Rhode Island say concerning the reactionary character of Senator Lippitt's political views and record is absolutely true. If the people of Rhode Island want that sort of a man, then Senator Lippitt is the sort of a man they want; if they do not want that sort of a man, they ought to vote against him.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir—In answer to your editorial question, "What do the people of Rhode Island think?" I would say that the great influence of the AMERICAN would consist in the State against such a representative of the interests as Senator Lippitt. He ought to be beaten, for he has been against the people in almost every instance. If we are in no forward with legislation such as the Boston AMERICAN fights for we ought not to elect any Lippitts. Yours truly,

EDWARD F. MORTIMER,
No. 255 Broad street, Providence, R. I., October 23.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir—I saw your notice about what Rhode Island thinks. I am sure that they agree with what your correspondent has written. Lippitt, Penrose, Crane et al. are always against the people and for the special interests.

GEORGE LEIBEAU,
No. 7 High street, Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 22.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir—Answering your question about Rhode Island, there is no doubt that your readers approve Senator Lippitt. He is for all monopolies.

FRANK BATHMAN,
No. 23 Abner street, Providence, R. I.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir—Your question to Rhode Island readers is a good one. You have several here who like your editorials. They have no love for Lippitt, who has no sympathy with them. Very respectfully,

HUBERT J. HIGGINS,
Edgewood, R. I., Oct. 22.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir—Rhode Islanders want to see the standpat Lippitt beaten. He opposed the ten-hour law for women in the mills many years ago. He was always with Penrose in the Senate.

Money will be used to carry this election, or Lippitt, but the readers of the AMERICAN cannot be bought.

JOSEPH J. CUNNINGHAM,
No. 85 Weybosset street, Providence, R. I.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir—Answering your editorial "What do people of Rhode Island think of Senator Lippitt?" I say he would be beaten only for the use of money, and will be any way if the AMERICAN will expose his record in the Senate. He is worse than Gallagher or Lodge.

Sincerely,
JAMES J. KIERNAN,
No. 18 College street, Pawtucket, R. I., October 24, 1916.
